PORTER CALM IN WAKE OF PRICE HIKES

OPA Chief 'Confident' Prices Will Be Stabilized As Food Costs Mount.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — On the heels of price increases for bread, flour and other foods, OPA Administrator Paul Porter today expressed confidence that "before too long" production gains will stabilize prices.

Taking an optimistic view even as higher ceilings went into effect on bakery products, wheat flour, cereals, macaroni, noodles, corn meal and hominy grits, Porter said in an address:

"I'm confident that before too long production here in this country is really going to take over and get in its own good licks to help the government keep prices at levels everyone can afford."

As Porter spoke, OPA had tagged for announcement soon price hikes on more market basket items—ceiling increases of perhaps eight to 10 cents a pound on coffee and one to two cents on canned corn, peas and tomatoes.

Bakery Goods Up.

Meanwhile, OPA ordered these retail increases into effect:

Bread—one cent on loaves weighing up to two pounds; on bigger loaves, two to three cents.

Bakery products—one cent a dozen on bread rolls, 15 per cent on cookies, crackers and biscuits.

Flour—about one cent a pound.

Breakfast cereals—one to three cents a package on all kinds except corn flakes, puffed rice and puffed wheat.

Macaroni and noodles — two cents on eight-ounce boxes, one cent on smaller packages.

Corn meal and hominy grits—one to two cents a pound.

OPA tumbled out announcements of these increases in rapid succession late yesterday.

It followed them up with a ruling that no ceilings apply until at least Aug. 20 on corned beef hash, meat stews, tamales and chili con carne. This reversed an earlier decision.

NO OPPONENT

May Certain of Renomination In Election Today.

FRANKFORT, Ky.—(INS)—Rep. Andrew J. May (D. Ky.) who has been the subject of senate Mead committe hearings into war contract "influence" was assured of renomination in today's Kentucky primary.

May is unopposed on the Democratic slate.

However, the size of the vote cast for him was expected by political observers to indicate whether his involvement in the Garsson munitions investigation has affected his popularity. May's GOP opponent this fall will be college dean Elmer Gabbard, who came within 2,800 votes of unseating the 71-year-old chairman of the house military affairs committee two years ago.

Paris Wire, Mail Strike Spreading

PARIS—(U.P.)—A wildcat strike by postal, telephone and telegraph workers spread through nearly half of France today and threatened to tie up the nation's entire communications system.

Defying orders by the Postal Employes union, the strikers — all government employes — shut down service in 40 of the 89 French departments. They organized a nation strike committee which demanded a general postal strike. Paris had no mail deliveries today. Seven telephone exchanges in the capital were closed, and those in most suburbs were out of action.

PLAN GRANGE CAMP

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — The program for the Grange camp to be conducted near Lancaster Aug. 9-11, has been completed, Joseph W. Fichter, master of the Ohio State Grange, announced today. Organization work and soil and water conservation will receive major attention at the camp, Fichter said.

WCTU Puts Finger On Drink Law

Points Out Bars Would Have to Close During Fair.

It just could be that Mansfield drinkers will face a two-day drought Aug. 22 and 23. Those are the dates of the Richland County Junior fair.

What's the connection between bars and the Junior fair? Well, it's like this: the Women's Christian Temperance union has reminded the state department of liquor control of a 58-year-old section of the Ohio code which makes the sale of liquor illegal within a two-mile radius of any Ohio State or county agricultural fair.

Most of Mansfield's liquor places lie within a two-mile radius of the fairground.

* * *

DEMANDS STRICT ENFORCEMENT

The WCTU has demanded strict enforcement and there appears to be little legal doubt as to the current validity of the law. However the question of who is going to enforce its provisions has Columbus officials tight-lipped and fast afoot.

If and when enforcement is accomplished, only 3.2 beer may be sold by bars within the rims of wide circles around fairgrounds throughout the state.

In the state capital, that legal line extends within two blocks of the city's principal downtown intersection. In Dayton, most of the downtown section would be within forbidden territory. Similar situations prevail in many other cities and towns.

ATHENS QUIET AFTER BATTLE

Committee of Citizens Takes Over to Keep Order After Violent Election Riot.

ATHENS, Tenn.—(AP)—A three-man citizens committee named by politically minded veterans who reinforced their ballots with bullets kept law and order in embattled McMinn county today.

Athens—scene of a violent six hour battle between veterans and deputies over the counting of ballots in Thursday's Democratic primary—was quiet as the committee took over.

Two ex-GIs were in charge of the jail, battered and bullet spattered from scores of rounds of ammunition. Other veterans patroled the county.

Athens itself was still under City Police Chief Bob Walker who said he would cooperate with the veterans.

The committee was named at a mass meeting yesterday to preserve order following the mysterious disappearance of McMinn County Sheriff Pat Mansfield.

Mansfield, a leader in the long-dominant county political group which the veterans claim they ousted with a slate of ex-GI candidates, left town after servicemen routed him and 34 special deputies from the county jail shortly after 3 a. m. yesterday.

The surrender of the sheriff and his deputies followed a six-hour battle during which 18 persons were injured as veterans and deputies besieged in the jail traded gunfire after a dispute over ballot counting.

A demolition bomb which ripped off part of the jail finally routed the deputies.

Meanwhile, Governor Jim McCord said at Nashville that he would send four state patrolmen to Athens for a day or so "simply to exercise ormal police activity."

On Sept. 1, Sheriff-elect Knox Henry will take over.

TAFT BLOCKS MYER

WASHINGTON — (AP) — An objection by Sen. Robert A. Taft, Ohio Republican, blocked confirmation of appointment of Dillon S. Myer of Hebron, O., to a $10,000-a-year job as administrator of the U. S. Housing Authority in the National Housing agency.

DISCIPLES MEET

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Approximately 4,000 delegates today were expected to attend the 92nd annual international convention of Disciples of Christ here Aug. 6-11.

This Is Elmer----Life-Size, Too

Here's "Elmer," a little Texas lizard who learned that it's sometimes a mistake to scurry across little boys' feet when they're out for a tramp in the woods. "Elmer" is now the pet of Forrest Wagner and his three companions who helped capture the rough-skinned reptile. The boys plan to exhibit him at school this fall . . . if teacher doesn't object.

BOMBS STRAIN CHINESE PEACE

Chiang's Airmen Hit Yenan In Surprise Attack to Destroy Bomber.

NANKING—(AP)—Bombing of the communist capital at Yenan by seven Chinese government planes dealt a severe blow to peace negotiations, already tottering on the brink of failure, a communist spokesman here said today.

Gen. Chou En-Lai, the top communist negotiator, received official notice of yesterday's 20-minute attack as he was conferring today with presidential envoy George C. Marshall. He had no immediate comment.

The message to General Chou from Yenan failed to mention casualties, but communist sources said a number of persons were killed and wounded.

Communist spokesman Wang Ping-Nan said Yenan's populace attempted no defense because of the suddenness of the attack.

Gen. Chou Jih-Jou, government airforce commander, asserted the raid was a successful attempt to destroy a government B-24 bomber which landed at Yenan on June 26 because of a fuel shortage. A request to the communists to send the plane back was refused, he said, so a special mission was dispatched to destroy it.

(The communists said the bomber had surrendered at Yenan because its pilot and crew members were weary of the civil war and refused to fight any more.)

The airstrip is two miles from Yenan itself.

Eleven bombs were dropped. The grounded B-24 was reported burning as the squadron wheeled away.

WAITS IN JAIL

Man Faces Murder Charge In Athens County.

CHARLESTON, W. Va.—(AP)—Delbert Spencer, 47, was in Kanawha county jail today awaiting removal to Athens county, O., to face a first degree murder charge in the shooting of Mrs. Pauline Bailey, 33.

The Charleston mechanic was found hiding under a rock cliff in an isolated section of Jackson county yesterday by authorities who had searched the area continuously from a few days after Mrs. Bailey was slain, July 22, on her mother's farm near Gloustter, O.

Dirty, hungry, and complaining that chiggers "were about to eat me up," Spencer said he had lived "strictly in the woods, eating what food he could get from nearby farms" while posses, for a time led by bloodhounds, had sought him. He offered arresting officers no resistance.

Blames Engineer For Train Wreck

BAYONNE, N. J.—(U.P.)—Engineer William O'Neill, 71, was blamed in a management statement today for the crash yesterday of two Central railroad of New Jersey commuter trains which killed one person and injured 83 others.

E. T. Moore, general manager of the railroad, said an investigation indicated that O'Neill "failed to control the speed of his train in accordance with signal indications." The automatic signal system was working perfectly, Moore said.

Boys Discover Texas Reptile In Woodlot

He's No Bigger Than His Picture (Above) But He Caused Plenty of Excitement for Four Youngsters.

By LARRY MURPHY

A hike in the woods of Bell Heights by four boys Thursday afternoon resulted in a prize "catch" for them when a Texas lizard scurried over 12-year-old Forrest Wagner's foot.

Wagner, who lives on Central avenue, was walking in the wooded section north of Grace street at the end of Central avenue with his companions, Bill and Norman Stutz, 473 Central avenue, and Henry Ragsdale, 486 Central avenue, when they discovered the reptile.

Although they were a little frightened by the strange creature the four boys managed to capture it in a can and later transfer it to a glass jar in which they brought it to the News-Journal.

"Elmer," who is now the pride and joy of the neighborhood, is a miniature Mr. Five By Five. Except for his tiny tail he is about five or six inches long and almost as broad and thick. When frightened he swells up like a little balloon to reassure himself of his own importance in the world.

Wagner said that when the reptile was taken home Texan neighbors had told the boys that the creature was a Texas lizard which southwestern boys often captured and hitched to toy carts for sport. Wagner then verified this report by checking with an encyclopedia.

"Elmer," as he has been dubbed, will be kept by the boys in an old aquarium until school starts when they plan to exhibit him at school.

Both Wagner and Ragsdale are in the seventh grade and Bill Stutz in the eighth grade at John Simpson Junior high school, while Norman Stutz is in the sixth grade at Newman school.

REVEALS REDS STOLE SECRETS

Army Claims Soviet Soldiers Forced Germans to Hand Over U. S. Documents.

FRANKFURT, Germany—(AP)—The U. S. army announced tonight that two of three Russian soldiers, arrested recently in Berlin as spies and later released to Soviet authorities, had forced German employes of the U. S. army to hand over secret American documents.

The announcement—issued from the office of Brig. Gen. Edwin L. Sibert, U. S. army intelligence chief in Europe—followed Russian charges that the three Soviet soldiers were "treated like criminals while in American custody."

The three Russians were turned over to Red army authorities July 17 shortly after the Russians had released U. S. army Warrant Officer Samuel L. Harrison of San Antonio, Tex. and his wife, who had been held for 15 days after entering the Soviet zone without proper credentials.

The three Russians declared in an interview published in the Russian-controlled Berliner Zeitung in Berlin that they had been interrogated "rudely" while held by the Americans in attempts to make them "betray our country."

However, American spokesmen pointed out that the Soviet allegations came three days after Capt. Harold Cobin of New York City and Lt. George Wyatt of Oklahoma City, newly freed after being held incommunicado by the Russians for 27 days, had stated to the press that the Soviets accused them of being spies and questioned them sharply about U. S. military government affairs.

CUT SHOE OUTPUT

PORTSMOUTH—(AP)—Two local shoe factories expect to curtail operations next week because of a lack of leather and fabric which officials said was due to a drop-off in the marketing of hides.

PLANE CRASHES

Bomber Occupants Die As Big Craft Falls In Flames.

LONG BEACH, Calif. — (AP) — An army air forces B-25 medium bomber, groping for a landing in an overcast, crashed in flames three miles southeast of the army air field early today, killing the five or six persons aboard.

Nearby residents said there was a blinding flash and an explosion was heard.

Army spokesmen said the bomber was en route to Long Beach army air field from Albuquerque, N. M. The plane crashed in vacant land not far from the naval ammunition depot between Long Beach and Seal Beach.

Sunday N-J Tells Inside Story of Altgeld Fight

John Peter Altgeld, a Richland county farm boy who as governor of Illinois stirred one of the bitterest controversies of the 19th century, once again is the center of attention in the nation's press.

Subject of Howard Fast's new novel, "The American," Altgeld and his work will be the theme of a story in Sunday's News-Journal. Altgeld, who pardoned the convicted "anarchists" following the Chicago Haymarket riots of 1886, was once a familiar figure on Mansfield streets.

You'll also get a chance to look over nearby Roseland in another series of stories being written about the 77 communities bordering Mansfield. Roseland was originally owned by Thomas Welch, who was deeded the land by President James Madison.

News-Journal cameramen will also take you to Lucas road where more than 1,500 members of the Free Methodist church have been staging a two-week camp meeting. Missionaries from India and ministers from points as far west as California have been attending the conference.

Readers will find these and many other features in Sunday's News-Journal!

Jug-Sized? ---Or Out Of Jug!

GALLIPOLIS— (U.P.) —Gallia county's mystery snake popped up again today.

The latest report of the existence of a huge reptile was delivered by Hollis Grate, farmer who lives near Wilkesville, on the border of Gallia and Vinton counties.

Grate, who said neighbors could verify his story, claimed he saw the snake, "fully 20 feet long with a body as thick as a two-gallon jug," while mowing grass.

'BIG FIVE' HOLD PEACE PARLEY CHAIRMANSHIP

Small Nations Lose Fight By 12-8 Vote; U. S., Russia Unite On Issue.

PARIS —(AP)— Leaders of the Paris peace conference voted 12 to 8 today to rotate the conference chairmanship, as urged by the large nations, and then turned to the question of whether a two-thirds vote or a simple majority would decide all issues.

The vote on the chairmanship was the first outright test in the dispute between large and small nations, and was a victory for the United States and Soviet Russia. The chairmanships will rotate among the United States, China, France, Great Britain and Russia in that French alphabetical order.

The nations voting for the rotating chairmanship proposed by the foreign ministers council were:

The U. S., Canada, China, France, Great Britain, Norway, Poland, Czechoslovakia, the Ukraine, Soviet Russia, Yugoslovia and White Russia.

The nations voting for a single permanent chairman were:

Australia, Belgium, Greece; India, New Zealand, Holland, Brazil and South Africa. Ethiopia abstained from voting in the action by the powerful committee on rules and procedure.

China was not an inviting power, due to the insistence of Russia, but as a member of the foreign ministers council will take its turn in the chairmanship rotation. Each charman will serve three days.

The queston of a two-thirds majority, favored by Russia and the United States, promised to be another fight between large and small nations. The rules committee adjourned until Monday without reaching a decision.

A British spokesman, meanwhile, said Britain would go down the line in support of every compromise reached by the foreign ministers on peace treaties. He expressed the opinion there would be no reopening of the Trieste question, despite Yugoslavia's opposition to the ministers' decision to internationalize that disputed city.

SMASH RINGS

Officials Round Up Two Rival Marijuana Gangs.

NEWARK, N. J.— (INS) —The federal bureau of narcotics today announced the smashing of two rival marijuana rings, selling 1,000 cigarets a day at $50,000-a-year profit.

Five men and three women were arrested.

Col. Garland H. Williams, district supervisor of the bureau, said the gangs had bought marijuana at $150 a pound in Harlem. Each pound yielded about 1,800 cigarets, which sold at 50 cents to $1 each.

Coroner Says Woman Died Before Fall

Officials Puzzled By Lack of Blood Trail to Scene Of Tragedy.

ASHLAND—Coroner A. D. Lewis said today an autopsy on Mrs. Kate Semler revealed she had died about 1:30 a. m. yesterday and was dead when her body entered the cistern at the rear of her home at 129 Maple street where she was found shortly after 4 a. m. by her son, Robert, 24.

A verdict on the cause of Mrs. Semler's death is being withheld pending further investigation, Lewis said.

Meanwhile County Prosecutor C. W. Chorpening and Police Chief Harry Smith are continuing their search for information that will lead to a satisfactory explanation of the death.

* * *

Find No Trail.

A careful scrutiny this morning of the grounds and the house failed to reveal any traces of blood between the cistern and the bathroom where Mrs. Semler's son, Robert, a returned war veteran, first discovered the bloodstains that prompted the search for his mother, Chorpening said.

A razor, believed to be the instrument used to slash Mrs. Semler's neck and wrists, was found in the bathroom, police said.

Private funeral services were to be held this afternoon at 2:30 p. m. at the Denbow funeral home by Rev. Frank W. Brown. Burial was to be in Ashland cemetery.

Farmer Accused In Fatal Shooting of Mother in Berry Patch.

ASHLAND—Charged with second degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Mrs. Roger McKinley, 26-year-old Jeromesville mother of three, in his blackberry patch Wednesday night, Charles E. Briggs, 62, Lake township farmer, entered an innocent plea today before Justice of the Peace William T. Devor.

Ashland County Prosecutor C. W. Chorpening said that Briggs, charged with shooting Mrs. McKinley while she and her husband were picking berries on his farm, waived examination and was bound over to the Ashland county grand jury on $10,000 bond set by Justice Devor.

Date of the trial has not been set, the prosecutor said. He said that Briggs was expected to select an attorney today.

'Didn't Aim to Kill.'

Meanwhile Briggs, who maintains he "did not intend to kill—wanted to shoot over their heads," has remained calm during his confinement in the Ashland county jail, following his arrest an hour after the shooting occurred at 7 p. m. Wednesday. Chorpening said that Briggs has had no visitors since he was taken to jail.

Prosecutor Chorpening said today that Briggs altered his story of the incident only slightly yesterday when he signed a statement. He said the farmer admitted loading the gun after he got out of his car at the berry patch. He had maintained that the gun was loaded before.

Briggs' statement said: "People have been taking my berries and my wife and I haven't been able to get any." Briggs added that he had been bothered with hog and chicken thieves.

The prisoner said that when he saw the McKinleys in the berry patch he went out and "tried to shoot over their heads."

Chorpening said Briggs probably fired from a range of 100 yards with his single-shot rifle into the bottom of a ravine.

Briggs, a former resident of Monroe county, came to the Lake township farm in 1933, rented the property for 11 years and purchased it last year.

Meanwhile, funeral services for the victim, who died a few minutes after the shooting, were scheduled to be held at 2:30 p. m. today at the Fickes funeral home in Jeromesville. Mrs. McKinley will be buried in the Hayesville cemetery.

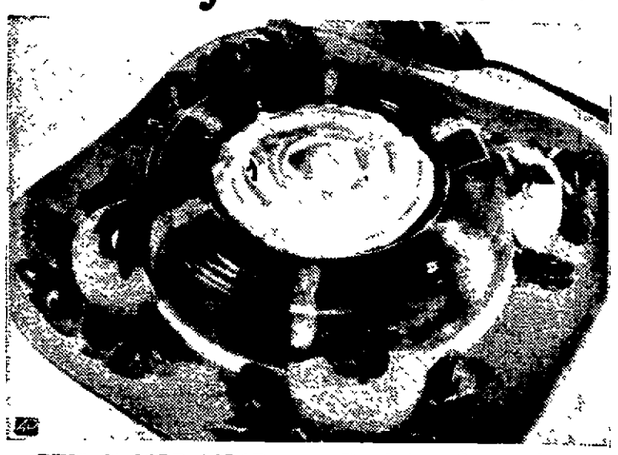
Hints for Hot Weather Entertaining



RING O' GOLD SALAD . . . For hot-weather meals.

By CHARLOTTE ADAMS

In hot weather, two courses are plenty for any dinner, both from the point of view of the cook and that of the persons who eat it. One course should be hot, as we all well know. The other should be as cool and as cool-looking as possible.

Here's one good menu for such a dinner. The second course is a dessert-type of salad and most refreshing.

DINNER MENU
Duck With Mushroom Sauce
Dry Rice
Fresh Garden Peas
Ring O'Gold Salad

Duck With Mushroom Sauce.

1 5-to-6 pound duck
1 tablespoon kitchen bouquet
1½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon onion salt
½ teaspoon powdered marjoram
1 6-ounce can broiled-in-butter mushrooms
1 pint duck broth
½ cup duck fat
¼ cup flour
2 tablespoons sherry

Clean duck thoroughly. Cut off neck close to the body. To make duck broth cook neck with giblets in 1 pint water until tender. Quarter duck. Place in heavy 9-inch frying pan or Dutch oven with tightly fitting cover. Braise, uncovered, over moderate heat, turning frequently, for about 20 minutes. Drain off fat. Blend together 2 teaspoons kitchen bouquet, 1 teaspoon salt, the onion salt and marjoram. Brush on duck. Cook over moderate heat until brown, about 15 minutes. Add ½ cup mushroom liquid and cook, covered, until tender, about 35 minutes. Remove to warm platter. Drain off fat from pan. Add duck broth, 1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet; and ½ teaspoon salt. Blend together and add duck fat and flour. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Lower heat and add duck and mushrooms. Simmer, covered, over low heat for 10 minutes. Add sherry. Serve immediately.

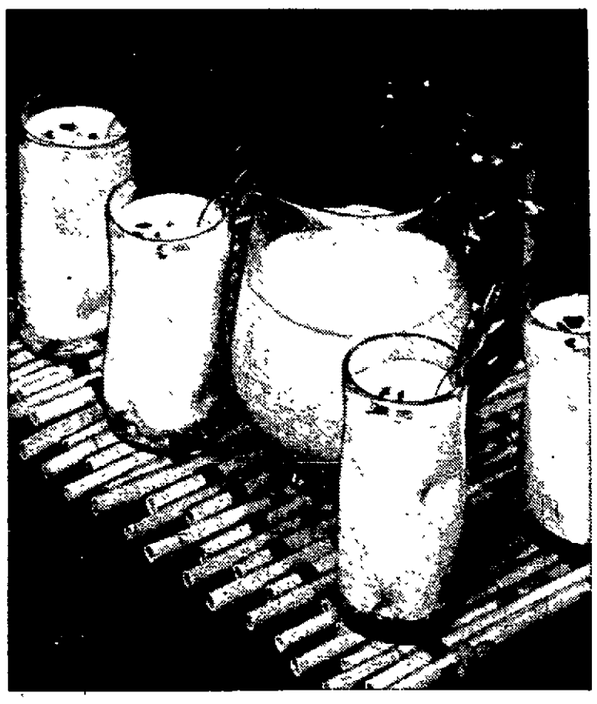
Ring O'Gold Salad.

2 tablespoons gelatine
¼ cup cold water
½ cup boiling water
2 tablespoons honey
1¼ cups juice from canned pineapple
1¼ cups juice from canned apricots
¼ cup lemon juice
1 cup creamy cottage cheese
12 canned apricot halves
8 slices canned pineapple
Real mayonnaise
Watercress

Soften gelatin in cold water. Add boiling water and honey and stir until dissolved. Add pineapple, apricot and lemon juices and chill until it begins to thicken. Pour into 9-inch ring mold enough of gelatin mixture to cover the bottom. Fill apricot halves with approximately one-third of the cottage cheese. Place each two halves together. Arrange on gelatine in mold with quarter slices of pineapple. Pour gelatine mixture into mold, reserving ½ cup. Chill mold until firm. Mix remaining cottage cheese and gelatine together. Pour into mold and chill until firm. Unmold. Fill center with mayonnaise. Garnish with slices of pineapple and watercress.

SLEEPING POSTURE

Some psychologists attach a special significance to postures assumed in sleep. They state that habitually sleeping with an arm about a pillow reveals an unconscious need for affection, sleeping flat on the back with legs and arms outstretched shows the sleeper faces life uncompromisingly, sleeping rolled up like a kitten shows a tendency to flee the realities of life. Regardless of psychological theories, however, the main thing is to sleep comfortably, on a bed having a resilient mattress and spring, in order to get the deepest rest.



JAM MILK SHAKES ARE EASY, FUN TO MAKE

Whether your preference is for a milkshake "thick enough to cut with a knife" or thin enough to draw through a slim straw, it's yours for the making, right in your own kitchen.

There are just a few tricks to turning out professional-tasting milkshakes at home, but these are easy to master. First of all, duplicate the line-up of fruit syrups at the soda fountain by supplying yourself with a variety of jams and preserves.

Secondly, stock up on well-chilled milk and ice cream and your kitchen soda fountain is ready for business. Try the following milkshakes, adding more or less ice cream to vary the thickness. Then experiment in developing some original favorites.

Cherry Jam Milkshake.

1 pint vanilla ice cream
2 cups milk
¼ cup cherry jam

Place ice cream in a wide-mouthed mason jar and break up with a spoon. Add milk and jam. Cover tightly and shake well. Raspberry, strawberry, apricot or any other desired flavor of jam or preserves may be used instead of the cherry. Makes 2 to 4 servings.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennet Cerf

Babcock was intrigued by the advertisement of a canary that could sing every song in the world. What's more, the bird lived up to all his advance notices.

On request, he warbled "Melancholy Baby," "Rule Brittannia," and an aria by Bach. "How much?" said Babcock. "Two hundred dollars," said the proprietor, "and you'll have to buy this other bird with him."

"The two hundred is steep enough," complained Babcock. "Why must I buy this other bird as well?"

"The canary needs him," said the proprietor. "That's his arranger."

At a luncheon of wives of Hollywood bigwigs, one producer's bride arrived literally dripping with diamonds. "Aren't they beautiful," gasped a visitor from New York. "Hmph," snorted the hostess with a shrug, "last year's jools."

A little later, the New York lady had occasion to speak with the bejeweled matron. She came back with her eyes popping. "What do you think her husband made last year?" she whispered. "Half," snapped the matron.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, August 4.

Sunday's horoscope encourages a slowing-down process, a letting-down from preceding high tension and over-dramatic thrills. These may have incited a nervous, crotchety, quarrelsome or jealous state of mind and mode of action, in which "the least said is soonest mended." Excitement, indulgence, scenes get nothing and nowhere.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which all progress, happiness and gain depend upon firm control of all words, deeds and actions. Contacts with business and domestic or social associations are important.

Nervous tension, depleted vitality or mental inertia or laxity might beget regrets of far-reaching significance. Attention to health, rest, vacations, or pleasant diversions may be excellent groundwork for future progress.

Barclay On Bridge

HAVING embarked upon a particular plan of play for his contract, a declarer is not compelled to follow it through to the bitter end. If he encounters an unexpected situation, in the defenders' suit-lengths or in location of their high cards, he may find it necessary to switch his procedure and act along entirely different lines. As a matter of fact, the ideal plan considers such possibilities and includes within itself the preparedness to change direction if that appears advisable.

	♠ A 6 4 2 ♥ A 10 3 ♦ A Q 7 5 ♣ 4 2
♠ J 8 7 3 ♥ 5 ♦ 10 6 4 3 ♣ J 9 7 5	N W E S	♠ K Q 10 9 ♥ K J 7 2 ♦ K 9 2 ♣ K 6
	♠ 5 ♥ Q 9 8 6 4 ♦ J 8 ♣ A Q 10 8 3

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West

Dbl	2 ♠	3 ♥	Pass

After West led the spade 3, South got going rapidly on a plan which, to say the least, was based on plenty of confidence in his omens. If they were propitious, he would find the outstanding hearts divided with three to one defender and two to the other, counter to the danger that East's double might indicate four of them in his hand if his double showed his preparedness for a bid of either major by his partner. If everything else was favorable too, South would find the club K with East, where it could be caught, and the outstanding cards would be divided evenly.

With all those high hopes, he saw the chance that he might lose only one trick in hearts, maybe not any in diamonds if the K lay with West, so might score a couple of extra tricks.

So he took the spade lead with the A and led the heart 3 to the Q, then finessed the diamond J to the K. He ruffed the returned spade, but the heart 6 to the A showed West out, so that the trumps were destined not to "break." Now his plan became one of scoring trumps separately as far as possible. He finessed the club Q, dropped the K with the A, ruffed the 3 with the heart 10, forcing East to over-ruff with the J, ruffed the returned spade Q with the heart 8, scored the two good diamonds and led the third. East with his heart K-7 could get only one more trick, as South with the club 10 and heart 9 was sure of the one trick needed for the contract.

Your Week-End Question.

What principle should guide you in the choice of your opening lead if your opponents have bid the rubber game in the most confident fashion in one suit without ever giving you any information about the rest of their holdings?

Compressed yeast, though convenient to use may spoil rapidly unless it is kept under refrigeration.

A child born on this day may not possess as vital and robust physical or mental assets as might be desired for aggressive or strenuous labor and its early development considering such lack is indicated.

Packing for vacation always brings on a number of packing problems. In the stores of the city there are a number of small compact gadgets which will solve the problem of combining compactness and utility.

* * *

For your spectators, white dress shoes is a glass jar of paste whitening which removes dirt spots and whitens at the same time. Inside the jar is a small rubber sponge in a metal compartment—saves mess and is easy to carry. Under a dollar.

* * *

For vacation reading, one of the local drug stores has what we consider an excellent variety of light paper backed books. The selection ranges from Thurber and Charles Adams cartoons through Alexander Woollcott's short stories, and the lighter classics of F. Scott Fitzgerald and James Hilton. Includes a large number of new mysteries by well known whodunit authors too.

* * *

Helene Curtis has a new "Egg" shampoo which comes in liquid form in a handy size bottle for packing. Makes hair light, fluffy and brings back the lustre the sun has taken from your crowning glory.

* * *

One manufacturer, with an eye to a woman's needs in the summer, has designed a new type of false fingernail. Made of an entirely new substance, these fingernails, when applied with a coating of polish, look like the real thing.

* * *

A clever and handy little packet that can be tucked away into a corner of your suitcase contains a small clothesline and 16 minature clothespins. Priced around 60 cents.

* * *

A purse or pocket flashlight can always be used and one store is selling small ones about two by four inches in size. These cost about 75 cents.

* * *

You never can tell when you'll need a needle and thread on vacation, so just to be prepared, you better include a sewing kit. One style comes in a sturdy little box complete with all colors of thread, scissors, and needles. These cost under $1.30. Another type in a cloth case costs around 70 cents.

Beauteous Helen of Troy, "the face that launched a thousand ships," wore among other jewelry, a ring decorated with the figure of a fish—for luck.

Bedtime Stories

—By Thornton W. Burgess

FEATHERED GYPSIES

Why worry? What's the use of it? It doesn't help a tiny bit.
—Sally Sly the Cowbird.

So Sally Sly doesn't worry. While most mothers do a lot of worrying over their babies when they are little and helpless, and later when they are starting out in the Great World for themselves, Sally Sly forgets she has any children. Anyway, it seems that way to those who know her and to her feathered neighbors to whom she leaves the feeding and care of her children.

"I simply haven't the time to bother with children," she explained to Peter Rabbit.

Peter's eyes opened wide. "Why not? Other birds seem to have," said he.

"That's just it, they have. So they may as well bring up my children with their own. I simply can't stay in one place long enough to make a nest and raise a family," said Sally Sly, catching and swallowing a Grasshopper.

"Why not?" persisted Peter.

"I would miss too many good times wandering about with my friends. We Cowbirds simply can't be tied down. What fun there is in working—and bringing up a family to work—I don't know," declared Sally Sly.

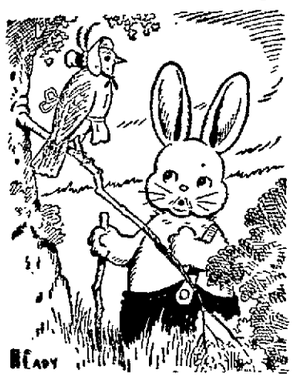
"I don't myself," confessed Peter.

"Anyway, I always make it a point to leave my eggs with those I know will take good care of them and bring up the youngsters better than I could if I should try. What more can they ask?" continued Sally. "They get the best of care. I'm saved a lot of work and worry and can go when I please, where I please, and have a good time. I don't like staying in one place a long time. I want to be on the move, here today and gone tomorrow."

"Don't you care what people think and say about you?" asked Peter.

Sally tossed her head disdainfully. "Not so much as a flit of my tail," she declared. "If I want to play around and have a good time that is my business. If other folks want to work hard, be tied down and worried half to death, that is their business. We Cowbirds are smart enough to make others do our worrying for us. We go where we please, see the Great World, live well, because we have no mouths but our own to feed, and have fun. What more can any one ask?"

"Love," said an unexpected voice. Mourner the Dove had joined them. Mourner and Mrs. Mourner, who are not the least bit mournful, merely sound so at times, are forever cooing and making love to each other, and are quite inseparable.



"I simply haven't the time to bother with children," she explained to Peter.

"Pooh!" said Sally Sly.

"Love you give and love you receive; love of a mate and children and love from a mate and children; love of a home," continued Mourner, taking no notice of Sally Sly's remark.

"Pooh!" repeated Sally Sly, and tossed her head scornfully. Have you ever noticed how often people say "pooh!" when they can think of nothing else to say? It is a very handy word. It sounds as if it is important and full of meaning, but it doesn't mean a thing.

"I am sorry for you. I really am, Sally Sly," continued Mourner as if he hadn't spoken.

"You needn't be. Nobody asked you to be," retorted Sally Sly.

"You are wasting your sympathy," said Peter Rabbit.

"You are just cheating and fooling yourself," Mourner went on. "A good time to be really good must be shared with others, with those we love. A selfish good time is really not a good time at all."

"Pooh!" said Sally Sly again and flew to join some other Cowbirds in another part of the Old Pasture.

"I don't like that bird," said Peter Rabbit, looking after her.

"Who does?" asked Mourner.

Like the Gypsies who wander where they will, Sally Sly and her friends moved on from pasture to pasture, carefree, thinking only of good times, unloving and unloved.

The next story: "The Neighbors Are Disgusted."

Drive carefully tomorrow—and if anything happens don't say you weren't warned.

What's more annoying than to buy more than you need of things that you find aren't scarce, after all?

Even the most optimistic rocketeers are not promising a trip to the moon within another thirty years—so the slogan may as well be: "See the Earth first."

Molotov's 'Red Herring' Device

GENERALISSIMO FRANCO, sitting behind the barricade of the Pyrenees mountains, must search his own soul at times with much the same feeling of a Macbeth looking at the imaginary blood of his own deeds on his hands.

Yet the Pyrenees are hardly a sufficient barrier to give him opportunity to plot conquests. His own country is uneasy. He maintains his rule only with an iron hand. Refugees outside his country are constantly plotting his overthrow. And his overthrow would be welcome to most of the peace-loving world.

He was undeniably in league with Hitler and Mussolini and his civil war was their proving ground.

But it is a little odd to have Franco singled out as a plotter of conquest by the nation which is now swallowing up areas of the globe equal to all of Spain itself!

Indeed, one doesn't have to be a cynic to suspect that Russia's Molotov is drawing a herring across the trail of his country's postwar "conquests" by thundering at Franco. It's an ancient trick to blame the other fellow in order to hide one's guilt.

Even those who may feel that there is some justification in Russia's annexation of eastern European territory must wonder about Molotov's hue and cry at Franco. Franco is a perfect set-up as a whipping boy, but shouting at him will neither cloak nor justify Russia's foreign policy.

Molotov's smoke screen is transparent—his herring is without distracting scent.

Headaches for OPA Workers

WHILE almost everyone seems confused over provisions of the second OPA the most confused of all appear to be those who are directly associated with administering the new law. Workers who had more or less mastered the tables, figures, percentages and subsidies of the first price law suddenly find everything quite different.

Instead of tightening screws in ceilings and plugging up leaks, they now find their duties are to roll back something or other, to decontrol, to raise prices, to make exceptions, and above all to rip off the ceilings and put themselves out of jobs as soon as practical.

Few people can begin to keep up with the OPA now, and neither can the OPA staffs. But it's one last valiant effort to slow up inflation in this country until production comes somewhere near filling the big demand for goods. The system is admitted to be an unsatisfactory compromise, but it is a measure worth backing.

It is well to remember that there is a connection between America's OPA and the nightmare of inflation in Hungary.

Where Can the Children Play?

A SIX-LINE ITEM in Thursday's News-Journal inspired a long letter from a reader. The item told about police being called to put a stop to ball playing by some boys in the vicinity of the complainant. It was reported that the officers said "they ordered the boys to play elsewhere."

The letter-writer wonders what's to be done with the children if they are not permitted to play in their home neighborhood—and if no suitable places for play are provided.

"Mansfield is always fighting against juvenile delinquency", she says, and contends that stopping boys from playing ball "is a good start to juvenile delinquency, if people keep sending the police after them."

The subject is an interesting one as it brings up Mansfield's lack of facilities for supervised play and points to a need for more places where children can play safely and without disturbing noise-conscious neighbors.

Truth Again Surpasses Fiction

WRITERS of mystery tales have often been accused of "just making up stuff that couldn't possibly be true" but the late E. Phillips Oppenheim in his best flight of fancy never made up any story more bizarre than that of the Canadian passports, revealed in the recent Canadian espionage trials.

In the Spanish civil war many American and Canadian volunteers fought with the Spanish republicans, who wanted a free government of free men under their own law, instead of virtual slavery under a dictator who was conniving with Hitler and using the prestige of an ancient regime to enforce his own ends.

Many of these brave and devoted volunteers died in action. Their passports were stolen, and some of them found their way into the hands of the Russian secret police. One of these stolen passports, traced through some 22 pages of the royal commission's report, belonged to a Polish-Canadian. This one got to Moscow and was used as basis for identification of an important agent who worked in the United States as well as in Canada. Thus truth once more proves stranger than fiction.

One Cause of World Difficulties

AT LEAST part of Secretary Byrnes' troubles in the council of foreign ministers are due to the American people. As Anne O'Hare McCormick says in the New York Times. "When Americans demand in one breath that their government take a firm stand on principle and in the next that the bulk of our forces be withdrawn from Europe, they should not complain of unsatisfactory compromises. We cannot stand and move away at the same time."

It now appears that Congressman May is suffering from "complications"—in more ways than one, no doubt.

SIDESHOW ATTRACTIONS

World 'Bill of Rights' Proposed

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.

ALMOST submerged beneath the wrestling at Paris, something new has been added to the formula by which the delegations are seeking peace.

The debit and credit clauses of the five draft treaties follow the lines of traditional postwar settlements.

But also included among the rules laid down for the conduct of defeated nations is a new clause embodying an idea which has become general only in comparatively recent years—that if, as now demonstrated, wars are to involve whole peoples rather than merely the military castes of nations, then the roots of war can be found, and eradicated, among the people.

So far, the idea consists merely of words— an order that the defeated nations (it's a worldwide idea but the treaties apply only to them) shall secure for their own peoples "without distinction of race, sex, language or religion, the enjoyment of human rights and the fundamental freedoms, including freedom of expression, of press and publication, of religious worship, of political opinion and of public meeting."

From one standpoint, it doesn't mean a thing. In almost every country the words themselves mean something different.

The United States and Russia already are at loggerheads over the application of this very idea in Poland, Hungary, Romania and elsewhere.

Definition itself will involve a bitter process. Coupled with the problems of commercial access to "controlled" areas, these words encompass, for practical puposes, all of the barriers to workable peace.

But it is formal recognition that human rights are basic; that they must be defined, established and protected; that peoples and not merely the corporate bodies of nations are the source of peace or war.

Although the new treaty clause was a recommendation of the human rights commission of the UN's economic and social council, its definition probably will be arrived at largely through a more or less independent, worldwide network of movements.

Back in 1941 Warren Seavey, Harvard law professor, proposed the undertaking. The American Law Institute, Carnegie endowment for international peace, American philosophical society, Commonwealth club and other groups interested a committee of lawyers representing 13 cultures—American, Arabic, British, Canadian, Chinese, French, anti-Nazi Germany, Italian, Indian, Latin-American, Polish, Russian and Spanish—and they have drawn up a composite of human rights from the constitutions of all nations.

It is a bill of rights for the world paralleling but surpassing in scope the U. S. Constitution.

The Anglo-Amerisan Caribbean commission has drawn a bill for that area; the American republics are expected to adopt another at their next meeting.

These are efforts to define basic human rights, a far different thing from actually establishing them. The UN commission will have all these and many other proposals before it when it meets again in December.

And presumably by that time it will also have before it five test tubes—five nations where the solution of these problems has become an order from their conquerors. But these five will have, too, the right to demand of their conquerors what the order means.

And the size of that request may only be foreshadowed by the present deadlock over the meaning of only one word—democracy.

Forces of Reform Slowly Gaining In South.

MEMPHIS — Traveling through the South at this time in the midst of heat and sulphuric fumes of pitched election battles is discouraging in some ways. Yet when you explore sub-surface disturbances there are some encouraging aspects.

It has become customary to say that the South is in a revolution. That is accurate.

But it is not a brand new revolution as some would picture it. It began in earnest a decade ago when President Roosevelt's New Deal began to get down to fundamentals and to encroach on long-entrenched vested interests.

This came about in such measures as the Wagner act, the Wage-Hour act to give southern workers a better opportunity, and the Farm Security act and farm tenancy reforms to deliver the sharecropper from bondage.

Those interests which enriched themselves on a low-wage economy in industry and agriculture fought back bitterly. They still are fighting back today, making what may be a last stand.

It might be described by saying that the forces of reform and change found heavy resistance with hand-to-hand fighting on the beachheads. After that a long, slow advance got under way. Now they have reached a sort of west wall for a final assault, which will mean long, slow fighting too.

Outside of the South, it is obvious that the things that will stand out naturally are the victories of Senator Bilbo in Mississippi and Gene Talmadge in Georgia, plus the return of lynch law in both states in its most horrible, inhuman and almost unimaginable manifestations.

It must be said that those who stirred up racial hatred for political advantage must share the blame, in the first instance, and beyond them as silent partners in the background, those interests which aided and abetted the demagogues for their own selfish economic advantage. That carries the blame to some high-placed and responsible persons in what might be called the counter-revolutionary circles of social prestige and high finance.

They sowed the wind. The South reaps the whirlwind.

Despite all this, despite the setbacks, despite the ominous clouds that suddenly have appeared on the horizon, it is evident to one familiar with the South and its people that there has been progress in many directions.

One way to put it is to say that a minority of fine, intelligent and able people which has worked faithfully and against odds for many years for better treatment of the Negro and for improved economic conditions of both Negroes and the poorer whites gradually has increased both in numbers and influence.

They have not lost heart with the recent reaction in some sectors such as Georgia and Mississippi, but are more determined than ever to carry on. They deserve and should receive every encouragement.

Another way to put it, on the economic side, is to contrast conditions in the South as seen by this writer on his present tour with those seen 10 years ago on an assignment to investigate low wages.

Wages then were unbelievable in some of those small industries which had run away from decent labor laws and labor unions of the east and middle west to exploit the white and black labor of the South.

Wages are still low today in many places, but there has been improvement. That has come with union organization. Ten years ago union organizers were beaten and driven from small towns in the South. Today they are received without molestation, except in rare instances.

There is courage aplenty still among these Southern folks who are trying to achieve for the South its appointed destiny.

Dave Boone Says:

GERMANY can't get into the peace conference. This is the first time that anybody got humiliated that much for losing a war.

* * *

What would Kaiser Bill, Bismarck and Frederick the Great think if they knew that the best the victors could do for Germany at a peace parley was to put it on a waiting list?

* * *

But I don't think a German should be too upset. A fellow can be badly hurt at those peace meetings. Look at Italy. Gosh, all the countries that are being given treaty drafts would gladly step aside and say "you first" to Germany.

* * *

I can't see why there is such amazement over exposure of graft, corruption and the waste of millions of dollars in war contracts, with no concern shown by Washington until just now. For a decade nothing has been scoffed at more than correct bookkeeping, economy and a little saving here and there.

Housewives Know!

While thousands of citizens were writing to their congressmen to "hold the line, save OPA, prevent frightful inflation"; and while congress was tearing its collective hair and rubbing its bald spots in frantic search of some formula for political management of economics, there were millions of housewives and other shoppers refusing to pay exorbitant prices for goods, regardless of OPA, XYZ, ETC.

Fear of rising prices prompts people to appeal to congress to "do something." But the habitual Yankee common sense that refuses to be bilked by profiteering prices is the real sheet anchor to windward.—Detroit News.

Isolationist Era Ended for U. S. As Co-operation Pledge Is Made

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOWEVER difficult may be the paths of international cooperation, the United States is determined not to return to a policy of isolation.

With this pledge, Secretary of State James F. Byrnes guaranteed continuing American participation in the problems of world peace as well as war. It was an answer at the outset of the Paris peace conference to any unspoken fears of small nations that this country might withdraw from a postwar council table, as it had once before.

The 21-nation conference opened auspiciously in the red plush chambers of Luxembourg Palace where 1,500 delegates began to review the Big Four peace treaty drafts for Italy, Hungary, Bulgaria, Romania and Finland.

'Open Door' Policy.

Russian and American representatives found themselves in immediate agreement on a proposal to make all the peace conference committee meetings and general assembly open to the world press. It was proposed by Secretary Byrnes as a step toward the Wilsonian ideal of a generation ago—open convenants openly arrived at—and seconded by Soviet Foreign Commisar Vyacheslav Molotov.

Molotov explained there had been distortion of some Russian attitudes in the past and that access of reporters to meetings might correct this. The conference rules committee unanimously adopted the proposal.

In his address of welcome, Premier-President Georges Bidault of France warned that while conference delegates might not find perfect solutions they must reach "at least intelligent solutions contrary neither to justice nor honor."

Australia's fiery delegate, Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, who championed the cause of smaller nations at the United Nations charter conference in San Francisco, continued his attack on major power domination.

"The 17 invited governments have just as much right to participate in the final making of the peace as the Big Four," he said, arguing that no one could say that one country had contributed more to the war effort than another.

Treaty Drafts.

In brief, the principal provisions of the treaty drafts before the conference are:

Italy: Loss of empire and military power; cession of small areas to France; the "Trieste compromise"; evacuation of occupying forces; $100,000,000 reparations to Russia, other reparations and commercial relations still at issue.

Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania: Realignment of borders as already effected, evacuation of Russian troops except along Austrian supply line in Romania; heavy reparations, mostly to Russia; skeleton military forces. Commercial access, Danubian navigation, Greek-Bulgarian and Hungarian-Czech frontiers still points at issue.

Finland: Confirmation of cessions and $300,000,000 reparations to Russia under armistice terms. Compensation to other allies and commercial access still at issue.

At Home

The 79th Congress.

The 79th congress shifted to high gear in last-minute efforts to clean up the legislative calendar. At one point the house lawmaking machinery moved so fast it prompted Rep. Clare Boothe Luce (R-Conn) to remark: "We're being so dynamic that in some cases we are passing the same bill twice."

The windup came early Friday evening, and, barring a special session, congress will not convene again until Jan. 3 of next year.

Haste was necessary for 1946 is an election year and all of the house and a third of the senate face the polls in November. Many a legislator had taken time out to campaign in primaries and all were anxious to get home, for it is axiomatic that political fences do not mend themselves.

The 79th congress took office January 3, 1945, during one of the critical points of the war—Battle of the Bulge—and it was going out in the middle of a critical postwar period. It began work in a spirit of wartime unity and it was winding up in a political free-for-all.

* * *

Inefficiency and Worse.

The senate war investigating committee switched its spotlight from Rep. Andrew Jackson May and the Garsson munitions combine, which it accuses of war profiteering, to war contracts in general and financial arrangements of other congressmen with industry.

The Garsson probe was sidetracked temporarily by the illness of Rep. May, whose physician reported him suffering from a chronic heart condition, recently aggravated.

Rep. John M. Coffee (D-Wash.) appeared before the senate committee at his own request to explain that a $2,500 check he acknowledged receiving from a Tacoma, Wash., defense contractor in 1941 was a "campaign contribution." The contractor testified it was a fee for acting as his Washington agent.

Vital to National Welfare.

"Decisions are made in a democracy by the people, not by the government apart from the people. Their choices are governed in large part by their opportunities for education aimed at producing effective citizens. For this reason, I view the work of this commission as vital to our national welfare."

Thus did President Truman greet the National Commission on Higher Education at its first meeting in Washington. The 30-member group, headed by George F. Zook, president of the American Council on Education, is to survey American colleges and universities and recommend a long-range plan integrating curricula more effectively with needs of democracy.

The president's message was conveyed by John R. Steelman, U. S. Reconversion director, who told the group: "As a nation, we cannot afford ever again to permit the accident of family income to determine who shall go to college."

The government will spend about $300,000,000 for housing and other buildings for colleges swamped with returning veterans.

Abroad

War Trial Summations.

Prosecutors at the International War Crimes Tribunal at Nuernberg summed up the case against 22 leaders of the Nazi cult. While they spoke, Allied intelligence officers renewed a search for Martin Bormann (missing but never proved dead), who was reported seen near Munich. Hermann Goering and 20 co-defendants in the prisoners' dock listened intently through earphones to running translations.

"If you were to say of these men that they are not guilty," opened U. S. Prosecutor Robert H. Jackson, "it would be as true to say there has been no war, there are no slain, there has been no crime.

"What these men overlooked is that Adolf Hitler's acts are theirs. They put a gun in his hands."

The British prosecutor, Sir Hartley Shawcross, charged the defendants were guilty of "12,000,000 murders—a cold, calculated attempt to destroy nations and races in gas chambers and ovens."

The four-power tribunal will not hand down its verdict immediately.

De Gaulle Speaks.

Gen. Charles DeGaulle stepped down as interim president of France in a huff last January, declaring "I have had enough!" Last week he broke his long political silence and, in one of the frankest speeches of his career, warned of the possibility of a third world war if Germany were given a chance "to find again her grandeur in joining her ambition with that of someone else.

"Speaking at Bar-Le-Duc, commemorating heroism of French civilians slain during the war, DeGaulle depicted France as a nation dwarfed between two great powers and urged an immediate British-French alliance as the key of an eventual bloc of western European nations bound together for self-preservation.

The security of the world, he said, depends on future relations of the United States and Soviet Russia.

Seesaw In India.

After three months' negotiation, the British cabinet mission succeeded last June in getting India's two rival factions, the Moslem League and the All-India Congress, to agree on compromise proposals for independence, calling for a federated union and a new charter to be drafted by a constituent assembly elected by provincial legislatures. The compromise was accepted reluctantly by the league, even more reluctantly by the numerically stronger Congress party.

Last week the compromise seemed shot.

In Bombay, the Moslem League Council of Action withdrew its acceptance of the cabinet mission proposals and instructed the League's working committee to prepare a program of "direct action" to achieve its old demand for a separate Moslem state (Pakistan.)

Farmer's Diary: "A Boastful Speedster."

ON THE highway, a car passed me at unusual speed. In it was a man about 35 and his young son, 10, perhaps. The boy was in the back seat, looking out the rear window, his head and shoulders bobbing about as his father zoomed around the various cars and trucks. They seemed in a great hurry to pass every other vehicle on the road. For some distance ahead, I heard the motor roar as it picked up speed.

When I reached the village, I saw the car parked by the curb. Entering the drug store, I recognized the small boy waiting leisurely for a soda. His father sat beside him at the counter, talking with a farmer from a nearby community.

"We drove it down from the city in nine minutes flat," I heard him say. "Passed everything on the road. I put the kid in behind and had him keep lookout. But there wasn't a cop in sight. If there'd been one, I coulda dodged into a side road and given him the horselaugh."

The eyes of the young boy lighted up.

"It was hard to keep my seat and watch," I heard him say, "but gosh, Dad, it was fun to pass everything that way! Only how would you have made it into a side road going so fast? I spose you'd have done it tho—you always did so far."

"Boy, you ain't seen nothin' yet," his father said. "Goin' back, we'll really clear the road—only you stick to your watching."

The man he had spoken to was interested—he frowned. "I live up north a piece," he said presently. "My kids go on the bus to school. I'd hate to think what might happen if some guy like you come along racin' and couldn't get stopped. You're doin' a dangerous thing—I don't believe you even take thought how serious it might be for innocent parties. Even if a man don't value his own life, nor that of his children, he oughta consider that he owes something to other folks.

"You're teaching that fine boy of yours to disobey the law. When you get old, you may have to lean on that very son for support . . . how much more honor and respect he'd give you if you brought him up to do right and be decent.

"A man can't expect too much of the cops. They're servants of the taxpayers. You don't outsmart them—it's all in their day's work. Looks to me, fellows like you make plain fools of themselves . . . though it sounds harsh for me to say it, mebee. Looks to me, in fact, as if you ain't fit to have a driver's license!"

The speedster had no answer.

Enigma of Russian Policy Still Unsolved.

Walter Lippmann is on vacation for several weeks. His column will be resumed upon his return.

PARIS—At some moment in the future, as yet unascertained, Moscow will give the answer to the question, "Peace or War?" Most of the foreign ministers of allied nations now assembled here are men who tend to be dwarfed by the vast processes of modern history. But few are stupid. Not one supposes that a solid peace will be secured by this odd peace conference, which is only a phase of the post-war border disputes between the Western and Soviet political systems.

That is why American and British foreign policy is based on the expectation—or at least the hope—of a change in Soviet policy which will permit the nations to live in friendship together.

And that is why the subject most discussed in the dreary corridors of the Luxembourg Palace is not the course of events at this conference, but the riddle of Soviet aims.

You cannot obtain a decisive answer to the riddle, but at any rate you can hear more well-informed speculation than anywhere else in the world. You can hear also a few items of solid evidence which are of more interest than the best guesses.

Item One: The exile of the great Zhukov to the command of the garrison at Odessa is only the most spectacular development in the retreat of the generals into obscurity. Long before Zhukov, Timoshenko had also been exiled to the command of a distant garrison.

Rokossovsky, who was already under a political cloud before the war, is now tipped by the wiseacres as a good prospect for public or private extinction. He has talked too much, too often with foreigners, and too critically of the regime. And just to add the correct note of ironic comedy to this grim process, the aged Voroshilov is reported to have been transferred from the sphere of war to that of culture and the arts.

About the only moderately funny story being told in Paris is a well-authenticated anecdote about a high Soviet official who was queried in Berlin as to Voroshilov's equipment for his odd new assignment.

He is reported to have answered, with stolid solemnity, that Voroshilov was well equipped. Indeed, the old marshal, it seemed, had always been an enthusiast of the ballet and a connoisseur of ballerinas. Furthermore, he had an intense fondness for paintings of military scenes. It is agreeable to attempt to imagine in detail the vista which this reply opens out, and especially the acres of warlike art—the embattled cossacks, the scenes of snow flecked with gouts of blood, the charging infantrymen, and the rearing horses, all painted in the dreariest manner of the Soviet poster school—by which the tastes of Voroshilov will undoubtedly be satisfied.

Item Two: The harshness of the new five-year plan is infinitely greater than one has been led to suppose. All sorts of figures are quoted by the diplomats here. One of these, which is no doubt exaggerated but nevertheless symptomatic, is that the new plan contemplates an allowance of one pound of butter per Soviet citizen per year.

The point is that while no detailed figures are available, no one questions that the masters of the Kremlin have embarked on a policy of putting guns further ahead of butter than has ever been dreamed of before. At the same time, all the evidence suggests that for the present the Soviet state is in a condition of serious military weakness.

The facade of victory is there. But behind the facade there are realities, generally agreed upon, of shortages of such essential raw materials as oil and breakdowns resulting from war in many categories of vital industrial production. In addition to the terrible new weapons of total destruction, moreover, there are some types of more familiar armament such as long-range and high altitude aircraft which the Soviet state is only now beginning to manufacture.

Item Three: The first item is an aspect of a process of which the second item, intensive rearmament, is in part the purpose. The iron grip of the secret police—the dreaded NKVD which has now been reorganized and given another new name—has been immensely tightened.

This was necessary not only for rearmament but also in order to cure the ravages of war upon the Soviet system as a whole. It is too often forgotten that the Russian stooge of Hitler, General Vlasov, was able to recruit an army of more than one million Soviet citizens to fight against the motherland.

It is now known that the bloody battle of Velikie Luki, one of the bitterest engagements of the eastern war, was fought almost entirely between Russians. The Russian units in the German army were in fact regarded as wholly dependable and of high fighting caliber. The meaning of this should be sufficiently obvious.

This sort of thing, plus such problems as the disillusionment of the loyal Soviet forces who have seen Europe, plus the Soviet military weakness, adds up to an explanation of the tightened grip of the secret police.

As to the fact that the secret police have never exercised their power more ruthlessly, few of the innumerable qualified observers here have any doubt. The regime of iron is harsher than ever before in every respect, from the penalties for indiscreet intercourse with any foreigner to the briskness with which examples are made of those who wander into error.

The indictment of a large number of officials in charge of heavy industrial production, on the surprising charges of misappropriation of funds, is a small sign of what goes on within Russia. From this sort of sign, and from the exile of the generals, there are many who deduce that the period of the Soviet state "eating its own children" is by no means at an end.

Such is the current political climate within the Soviet state, as the best qualified men at this reunion of best guessers from all over the world now describe it.

It hardly seems to hold out that hope for a change in direction of Soviet policy, towards closer collaboration with the western world, which is the basis of the present foreign planning of the western nations.

But whether any such change is possible under the circumstances deserves more careful examination on another occasion.

Meter Revenue Goes Up $800

Mansfield parking meter collections for July totaled $4,447, topping June's receipts by $800 and marking the second highest monthly collection of this year.

July's receipts boosted to $26,848 the amount collected in meters so far this year and raised to $235,842 the fund received since the meters were installed in November, 1941.

Last month's collections were some $200 below the year's monthly high of $4,645, chalked up in May. The city's 418 meters brought in an average of $158 daily in July with 38 cents being the daily average per meter.

Jesus and the Sabbath — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

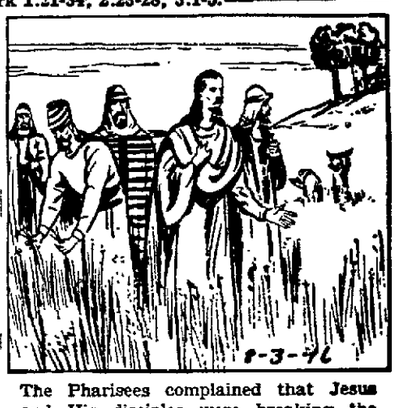
By Alfred J. Buescher

Scriptures—Exodus 20:8-11; Neh. 13:15-18; Psalms 92:1-2; 118:24; Matt. 12:9-13; Mark 1:21-34; 2:23-28; 3:1-5.

"In those days I saw in Judah some treading wine presses on the sabbath, and bringing in sheaves, and lading asses with all manner of burdens, which they brought into Jerusalem."

"There dwelt men of Tyre also therein, which brought fish, and all manner of ware, and sold them on the sabbath unto the children of Judah, and in Jerusalem, and I contended with them."

Simon's wife's mother lay sick of a fever, and anon they tell Him of her. And He came and took her by the hand, and lifted her up and immediately the fever left her.



The Pharisees complained that Jesus and His disciples were breaking the sabbath. Jesus said, "The sabbath was made for man, not man for the sabbath."

MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 118:24.

Allie Reynolds Hurls Sixth Straight Win With Two-Hitter

SPORTS ROUND UP

Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Don't look now but Billy Conn has bought a race horse. . . . The big leagues already have broken their all-time attendance "highs," with some 12,500,000 cash customers so far this season. . . . Yanks, Tigers and Dodgers already over the million mark and Red Sox, Giants and Cubs a cinch to hit the fancy seven figures before it's over. . . . Old Doc Kearns is offering Beau Jack $20,000 to tangle with Willie Joyce in the Chicago Cubs' ball park the first week in September. . . . And Boston promoters have climbed up to $10,000 trying to get Joyce for a return junior welterweight title taffy-pull with Tippy Larkin in August. . . . Joyce is holding out for $12,500. . . . And speaking of offers, Ralph Hamilton, the all-Big Ten forward before he went to war in '43, turned down a $12,000 pro basketball bid in order to go back to Indiana and finish out his last year in school.

TOUCHING THE BASES.

Ray Arcel, who got to be known as the meat wagon when he was lugging Joe Louis' opponents back to their corners after the Bomber tagged them, has the meat wagon coming to him now. . . . He's opened a restaurant here that he calls the Bagatelle. . . . Cleveland folks have sent Bill Veeck orders to buy $1,000,000 worth of stock in the Indians. . . . But No-Hat No-Necktie Bill will probably sell no more than $200,000 worth.

WINDING IT UP.

Jake Lamotta, who is our choice for the toughest middleweight around today, says the reason he can take a punch on the chin so good is because he exercises his legs. . . . He may have something there. . . . Didn't Max Baer hit old Primo Carnera on the whiskers one night and break Da Preem's ankle?

Player Demands Are Modest, Says Chandler

CHICAGO — (AP) — Demands by major league players in their efforts to get improved contractual and playing conditions are "comparatively modest," says baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

"I have great hopes that the player contract will be rewritten to create a new step in player-owner relationships," Chandler said yesterday in expressing sympathy for the big league players' demands for a minimum salary, spring training expenses, a pension plan and other improvements "to which they are entitled."

The plan proposed by the National league at New York yesterday for a "down-the-line" competition between the rival leagues to create a pension fund "seems sound to me." Chandler said, but added he would have to further study the proposal.

Akron's Jimmie M'Lane Sets New Swim Mark

Clips 19½ Seconds Off 1,500-Meter Free Style Record; Bucks In Team Display.

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—(AP)—He won't be 16 until September, but Jimmy McLane, 145-pound whizzer from Akron, O., is "the hottest man in U. S. swimming."

Some 2,200 fans who saw McLane lower the National AAU senior men's outdoor 1,500-meter free style record to 19:23.1 last night readily agreed with that summation by the veteran Yale and Olympic coach, Bob Kiphuth.

"There's no telling how good Jimmy will be," Kiphuth declared after the wonder boy had clipped 19½ seconds off Keo Nakama's old meet mark. "He's just beginning to mature and get full power."

Kiphuth gave McLane a good chance of beating the Japanese Amano's world record of 18:58.8 before the 1948 Olympics, "if all goes well." McLane is currently a student at Phillips academy, Andover, Mass., and presumably is headed for Yale.

* * *

McLane's brilliant individual effort was matched by the team display of Ohio State's 300-meter medley relay trio of Dick Fetterman, Jim Councilman and Halo Hirosi, who swam the distance in 3:20.7, shattering the old American mark of 3:22, set by the Chicago Tower club in 1940. Breast stroker Councilman was timed in 1:11.5 for his 100-meter stretch. The listed national mark is 1:13.

* * *

The determined relay surge shot the four-man Buckeye squad into second place with 18 points, close behind favored Hawaii university swimming club which finished the first day of the three-day meet with 21. Pasadena A. C. was third with 13. Behind the leaders, the teams trailed as follows:

Phillips academy, 6; Naval Air Technical Training Center, Jacksonville, Fla., 6; San Francisco Olympic club, 5; Michigan State, defending champion, 3; Deauville club, Miami, 2; Michigan, 1, and unattached, 3.

Besides McLane and the Ohio State relaymen, first-day champions crowned included Bill Smith of Hawaii, 200-meter free style, in 2:14.3.

Second Round Club Title To Moose Nine

Behind a fine two-hit hurling stint on the part of Wayne Hough, Moose pounded out a 5-1 win over Legion Post 72 at Liberty park to capture the second round title of the Club softball loop.

Post 72 won the first round crown and a playoff between the two teams will be arranged later.

Hough struckout 10 Post 72 clubbers with Richardson getting both hits off him—one being a double.

* * *

Reynolds was stingy with his base hits allowing the Moose nine but five. Two of them were triples by Schaeter and Bride.

In another loop tilt, the AVC edged the Sons of Herman, 10-9, at Prospect park.

St. Peter's Alumni forfeited to University club.

Pirates Sold, Says Paper

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—Frank E. McKinney, 42-year-old Indianapolis businessman, is the new owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball club, the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette said today.

In a front page story signed by Sports Editor Havey J. Boyle, the paper said it "learned definitely" that "after a half century ownership the Dreyfuss family has agreed to sell the Pirates to McKinney." The price was reported around $2,250,000.

But President William E. Benswanger, for the umpteenth time, denied the report and declared "the picture is no different than it was yesterday." This, he said, referred to his prior statement that McKinney and Charles J. Margiotti, Pittsburgh lawyer who also seeks to buy the cellar-dwelling Bucs, had an equal chance of obtaining the club.

Ransom Paces St. Paul Open

ST. PAUL, Minn.—(AP)—So far as the cash-on-the-line golfers were concerned today, the honeymoon was over as the St. Paul Open went into its third day with but 36 holes of play left.

Henry Ransom of Houston, Texas paced the field yesterday by shooting a four-under-par 69. Added to his opening-day 67, it gave him a 135 total and one-stroke lead over Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C.

WINS OWN NO-HITTER

BUTLER, Pa. —(U.P.)— Jim Maloney, ace righthander for the Butler Yankees of the Mid-Atlantic league, was the hero of the town today after winning his own no-hit-no-run game with a two-run single in the seventh inning last night. The victims were the Erie Sailors, who lost 2 to 0 when they couldn't touch Maloney's fast ball and sharp curve.

St. Paul Increases AA Lead With 14-Inning Win, 5-4

(By Associated Press)

St Paul moved up a half-game in the hot American Association pennant chase last night by beating second-place Louisville in a 14-inning stretch while Minneapolis knocked off pace-setting Indianapolis.

The Indians, holding a 2½ game margin over the Colonels and 3½ over the Saints, were bumped for the second time in their current series with the Millers. Minneapolis, although outhit 7-5, downed the Indians 5-1 with the aid of Babe Barna's 22nd homer of the campaign.

The Saints outlasted Louisville 5-4 with Johnny Rizzo scoring the winning marker. Rizzo singled, went ahead on Larry Rosenthal's sacrifice and came home on Bud Kimball's double.

The up-and-coming Toledo Mudhens whipped Milwaukee 5-4 by holding on to a 1-up lead after scoring twice in the sixth. The game was called at the end of the eighth because of the Milwaukee curfew. The Mudhens gathered a dozen hits, all of them off Walter Lanfranconi, who suffered his ninth defeat.

Kansas City clubbed seven hits in the first three innings, including a home run by Eddie Bockman, but was held to three blows the remainder of the game by relief pitcher Jimmy Hearn and the Columbus Redbirds rallied to an 8-4 decision. Hearn singled home the winning run in the ninth.

Pete Thoma had a 36 and Schwaner, Warga and Flockenzier each came in with 37's.

Giants Regain OS Loop Lead

(By Associated Press)

The Springfield Giants won a three-hour slugfest at Marion Friday night to go back into undisputed possession of the Ohio State league lead.

The 13-12 victory came on Leftfielder Bill Henry's homer in the eighth with one runner aboard. Meanwhile Zanesville's home game with Middletown was rained out in the fourth inning, enabling Springfield to move out of a percentage-point deadlock into a full-scale lead over Zanesville.

Rain spoiled another league game — Richmond at Newark, where the contest was called in the second.

At Lima the Dayton Indians bunched four runs in the seventh inning to come from behind and defeat the Terriers 7-6.

Chicago's 'Old Men' Use Heads

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
(AP Newsfeatures Writer)

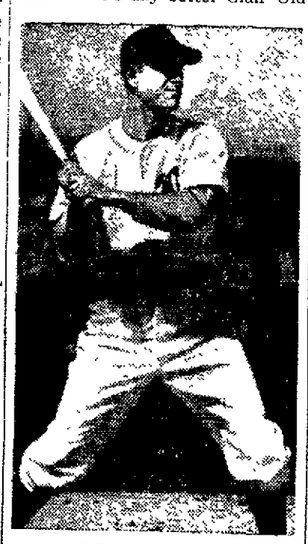
CHICAGO — At the hot spots of third base and shortstop, usually filled by colt-like racy youngsters with buggywhip arms, the Chicago Cubs are doing all right with a pair of "old men" who use their heads more than their legs.

They are 38-year-old Billy Jurges and 36-year-old Stan Hack.

Billy, who helped the Cubs win three pennants a decade ago, was promptly signed by manager Charlie Grimm when the Giants released him. Stationed at shortstop which has been a weak spot in the Cub machine for several years, Jurges has appeared in more than 40 games and has been guilty of only two errors.

"It's impossible to estimate the help he has been to us," said Grimm, "but it's obvious we're a better ball club all around when he's in there. He pulls the infield together and has a steadying effect that is evident throughout the team. I only wish I could keep him there every game, but that is asking too much at his age, no matter how willing he is."

Grimm observes that "the only fellow who's any better than 'Old



BILLY JURGES

Will' right now is Marty Marion of the Cards. But what Jurges has lost in speed he has made up for by smartness and experience."

Although only a .260 hitter, he has become an important cog in the Cubs' drive to overtake Brooklyn and the Cards with brainy fielding.

Hack — "Li'l" Junior — has slowed down a bit on the hot corner but he has made up for it with shrewd diagnosing of hitters which, in many instances has put him on the spot ahead of the ball.

Dodgers Edge Cincinnati While Cards Lose to Phils; Red Sox Lose to Tigers.

By JOE REICHLER, AP Sports Writer.

Allie Reynolds, forced back into the shadows by the brilliancy of his illustrious pitching teammate, Bob Feller, in the last month has turned in consistently fine mound performances that would do justice to Blazing Bob himself.

In fact, the Cleveland Indians' righthander has forced the great Feller to play second fiddle during the past 30 days as the 27-year-old Oklahoman racked up six straight triumphs while Feller dropped one game in seven starts.

Reynolds gained his sixth victory in a row yesterday and the eighth of the campaign at the expense of the New York Yankees whom he defeated 3-0 for his second shutout win. The triumph enabled Cleveland to remain within hailing distance of the fourth place Washington Senators who blanked the Chicago White Sox, 6 to 0.

A crowd of 35,863 watched Reynolds limit the Yanks to two hits and dump them into third place behind the Detroit Tigers who upset the Boston Red Sox.

The Tigers handed the American league leading Red Sox their third straight defeat when Dizzy Trout outpitched Tex Hughson, 7-1. The win gave the second place Bengals a two-point advantage over the Yankees.

Old Bobo Newsom won his eighth of the season as he blanked the Chicago White Sox with seven scattered hits to give the Senators their 6-0 victory.

* * *

Safe from the clutches of the challenging St. Louis Cardinals, who were guests of the Phillies in Philadelphia, the National league leading Brooklyn Dodgers returned to their winning ways by edging out the Cincinnati Reds 3-2 under the Ebbets field lights. The victory, coupled with the Cards' defeat by Ben Chapman's Phils, increased the Flock's lead over the Redbirds to two and a half games.

* * *

The Cards failed to hold onto a 2-0 advantage as the Phils jumped on Lefty Al Brazle for six hits—five of them of the infield variety—to score three runs in the seventh inning and defeat St. Louis 3-2.

Pittsburgh and the New York Giants divided a doubleheader at the Polo Grounds, the Giants coming back to win 3-2 after the Bucs, behind the southpaw slants of Fritz Ostermueller, had copped the opener 6-0. In achieving his ninth win, Ostermueller allowed only two hits, none in the first five innings. Three-run homers by Maurice Van Robays and Elbie Fletcher accounted for all the Pirates' runs in the opener.

The Philadelphia Athletics overcame an early two-run deficit to down the St. Louis Browns 8-3 as Phil Marchildon notched his seventh victory.

Rain postponed the scheduled Chicago Cub-Boston Braves night contest.

Bentley Post Wins Jr. League Title

CINCINNATI—(AP)—A team of sluggers from Bentley Post 50 of Cincinnati will represent Ohio in the American Legion's junior baseball regional tournament at Flint, Mich., a week from tomorrow against Kentucky, Indiana and Michigan teams.

The Cincinnati nine won the state championship yesterday afternoon from the Varsity Post of Cleveland, 8-4, after losing a morning game to the Clevelanders 4-1.

Tri-State Golf Tourney Starts

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The annual Tri-State golf tournament opened here today as 108 top amateurs from Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana split into foursome for 18 holes of alternate-shot play.

The event, played on the 6,523-yard Carmargo club course, will be completed tomorrow with 18 holes of best-ball competition.

Aggregate scores of the two days' play will decide tournament titles: low five teams from each state for the team championship and low pair score for the two-some crown.

SHIRLEY FRY GAINS NET SEMI-FINALS

EAST HAMPTON, N. Y.—(AP)—Shirley Fry of Akron, O., is in the semi-finals of the annual invitation tourney at the Maidstone club today but only after the toughest sort of battle from Louise Snow of Bakersfield, Calif.

Miss Fry, seeded No. 1 in the tennis competition, lost the first set to the Californian and trailed 1-3 in the second before her drives began to find their mark. The final score was 5-7, 6-4, 6-1.

Short-Term Marine Enlistments End

Termination of short-term (two year) enlistments in the Marine Air Corps was announced today through a bulletin received at the Mansfield Marine recruiting office, post office building.

Master Tech. Sgt. Ray E. Baumann, in charge of the local station, declared, however, that men who have already inquired about Marine aviation at the Mansfield station may still enlist for two years in it if they sign up and go to Cleveland to be sworn in before August 15.

Enlistments will remain open in aviation for three and four years, and for general duty for two and four years.

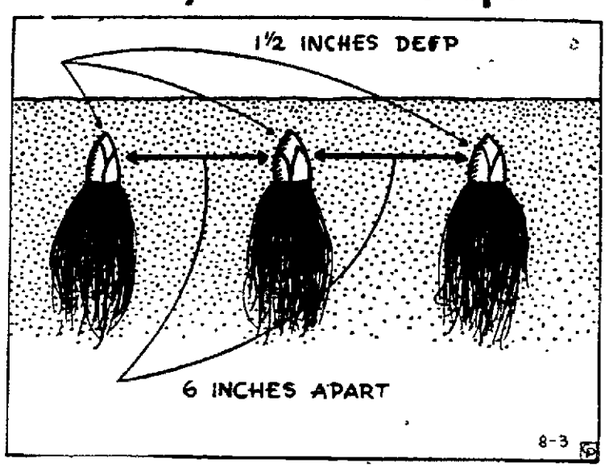
Today's Garden-Graph



Replanting Lily-of-the-Valley

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Old beds of lily-of-the-valley should be remade this month or in September, but not later than October, depending of course on weather conditions.

Old sod-like masses of these plants in long established plantings may produce plenty of foliage but the blooms will tend to become few and far between and smaller and smaller in size, unless the plants are taken up and replanted.

When the plants have been dug up, pull the pips apart and reset them six inches apart, as shown in the accompaying Garden-Graph. Cover with one and one-half inches of soil, as illustrated. The best soil for this purpose is one in which a good portion of leafmold or peat moss has been mixed.

If you desire extra large blooms cover the renovated bed this fall with a generous mulch of well fotted manure.

Many people unknowingly ruin their lily-of-the-valley plantings when picking the flowers. Each plant usually has only two leaves, therefore it is necessary that one leaf be left on the plant to supply food to the rootstock. When the two leaves are picked the result is no flowers the following year.

Where a shady location is not available, lilies-of-the-valley will thrive in the open. They will make themselves at home in a wide range of soils from hard-packed, heavy loam to almost pure sand, provided well-rotted manure, leafmold or humus is mixed with it to hold sufficient moisture.

Lilies-of-the-valley give the best effects when planted in rather large groups, or as a solid ground covering under trees.

THE PRISONER in the dark Gestapo dungeon in Berlin was tall, gaunt Rudolf Diels, founder of the Gestapo in the first turbulent days of the Nazi regime: Diels had said "no" to Adolf when the Fuehrer ordered him to liquidate an old pal who had outlived his usefulness to the swastika-gang. Now, Rudolf sat in his cell, awaiting the hangman—by order of Hitler, who did not like people who dared to say "no."

Standing before Diels was medal-dripping Hermann Goering. "I order you to divorce my sister," growled Goering. "Get out of her life. We cannot have a man in our family hung!"

Diels, a cool character, shrugged his shoulders, told Goering where to go.

Circumstances — too long and involved to relate here—saved Diels from the hangman. Today, sitting in a villa in Nuernberg, he supplies the prosecution with valuable information against the major war criminals. Among his frequent visitors was Capt. Harry N. Sperber, chief German interpreter of the trials. He has just returned from overseas. Diels spilled plenty to Sperber, including the tale of his fat brother-in-law's odd visit and demand.

"Strange," mused Diels to Harry, a sardonic smile on his sallow, sabre-slashed face. "It looks as if—after all—dear Hermann will have a man in the family hung! . . . Himself!"

HAL BOYLE . . .

BAMBERG, Germany—(AP)—A black-haired German girl stood silently before the roomful of American soldiers. The young soldiers neither giggled nor called crude jokes at her. They looked critically at the shadows on her nude body, then made painstaking marks on the papers before them.

The Bamberg Art school was in session.

An hour earlier the young soldiers had been patrolling the highways or working in the headquarters of the constabulary, the American army's new mobile police force for Germany. The art school is one of several educational and cultural diversions created to give them something to do in their spare time besides chase fraulems.

"It's on a part-time strictly volunteer basis," said Major A. S. Williams, information and education officer for the constabulary. "About 140 soldiers are taking courses in drawing, painting, photography, sculpturing and woodcarving."

The staff of German teachers is directed by a former sergeant. William Tardiff, 28, himself a prize-winning art student from Boston, Mass. Tardiff has a small studio off the main classroom.

"The art school provides a place where soldiers can come when they're tired of going to the movies or drinking beer," he said. "None of the men ever had art instruction before. Redeployment has made it hard for many students to finish their courses but they keep studying until the time comes for them to leave.

"They are surprisingly serious. I thought they might be a little self-conscious, but they look on the girls as just a problem in drawing.

"We have had some cases of dating between students and models —but what they do after hours isn't my business.

The art school is one of the most unusual since Og carved the first deer on the walls of his smoke-blackened cave. It is housed in the "Water Castle," a commodious baroque dwelling overlooking the placid Regnitz river.

The castle itself was built during the Seventeenth century by a cantankerous wealthy citizen named Johann Ignatz Tobias Boettinger, who had a phobia against paying taxes. Instead of dishing out to the tax collector, old Johann would hand over a building to the town authorities, thereby gaining a name as a philanthropist. Annoyed because he overheard his heirs quarreling over his property as he supposedly lay dying, Boettinger recovered and in revenge sank most of his capital in the castle, which he ironically called "Concordia House." His hapless heirs in time became owners of the castle but found its upkeep such a drain they had to present it to the city.

The art school gets most of its materials from the army, but has had to do considerable impro[illegible] Backdrops for the models, for example, are made from dark coffin lining silk, a material which many German girls also use for dresses.

Tardiff said the soldier students prefer portrait work first, then life class, landscapes and still life compositions.

"They like to paint anything but military subjects," he said. "They don't put their soldier life into their art.

"So far we haven't discovered any Rembrandts in the constabulary, but a number have real talent. Some plan to go to art schools in America later under the G.I. Bill of Rights."

Old army officers who at first looked down their noses at the art school as a "sissy project" approve of it now.

"They're in favor of anything that helps cut down the high venereal rate," said Tardiff.

Rescue Workers Comb Haifa Harbor for Survivors.

HAIFA — (AP) — Rescue squads working through the night picked up 32 survivors in Haifa harbor, where the British tanker "Empire Cross" burned after an explosion last night. Casualties were believed to total 10 or 12, largely British merchant navy officers.

Police said the ship blew up at an unloading dock. There was no hint from any source that the explosion was connected with Jewish activities or with the fact that some 5,000 illegal Jewish refugees are now awaiting permission of the British government to disembark at Haifa.

ORDERS FULL ADC PAYMENTS

Court Says Needy Children Must Not Be Neglected Due to Lack of Funds.

Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer today ordered that all aid to dependent children cases in the county be taken care of at "100 per cent of need" as long as funds last. He is county administrator of the fund.

Although the county is seeking transfer of funds now to meet the ADC bills, Judge Cramer said: "I do not feel that we can ask these families to try to exist on less than the 100 per cent of need."

"Our average payment to the 337 persons financed either partly or totally during August amounts to slightly less than $18 per person for the month," he said.

The county is awaiting a decision from the state on the proposed transfer of $7,000 from the public utility excise tax fund to the ADC fund to meet expenses for the rest of the year.

Complaints Bring Prompt Repair of Broken Sewer Line

A broken tile which had been pouring raw sewage through sections of the lower Ohio street area today had been repaired—and the health department's phone had stopped ringing.

Street Supt. C. H. Hebel said the repair job was completed yesterday by use of metal plating and cement to shore up the sewer tile. He said it was probably broken by rocks which had fallen or were tossed against the tile.

Mopping his brow today following the repair job was Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner. He said that he had received at least 25 telephone calls within the past few days from persons complaining about the smashed tile.

Wild said that the break was in a trunk sewer line which serves the southwest section of the city. As a result, raw sewage had been poured directly into Ritter's run and "constituted a terrific health hazard to persons living in the vicinity."

Hebel said the stream had to be diverted so that repair work could be done. A metal plate was fastened over the break and it was covered with cement, he said.

The executive committee, composed of all post officers and the past commander, will meet Wednesday evening to discuss several important issues. Next regular meeting of the body will be at 8 p. m. Aug. 16, in Memorial hall.

NEARLY MADE IT!

Oh, well, it might have become lonely! Anyway, police yesterday missed by a half hour a chance to see city jail devoid of "visitors" for the first time in months. As municipal court machinery prepared the papers which would move the last of the city's "guests" to county jail, Lt. Gene Hartnett rubbed his hands. "If the papers come through on time the jail'll be empty," he mused. But the papers lost their race with an eager cop. In he marched with a new guest—found intoxicated behind the wheel of a car. As one prisoner left, the jail doors clanged behind another—and the jail missed its chance to stand empty.

MUSTARD ATTACK—

The mustard and ketchup flowed freely at Max Diner, South Walnut street, early this morning. Booked on a disorderly conduct charge in municipal court today and fined $25 and costs was Mary Tyron, Mansfield. As officers told the story, she started heaving "anything she could lay her hands on" at some wee-hours customers. Most of her ammunition consisted of brimming mustard and ketchup bottles, police said. Angry customers surged around police when they arrived, complaining about ruined clothes which had been drenched when Mrs. Tyron became so generous with the hamburg dressings. In court today she said that she was trying to close up the diner and the customers "wouldn't leave."

LAWMAKERS GO HOME TO FACE VOTE BATTLES

Senators In Closing Action Leave World Court Power In President's Hands.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Lawmakers shifted from the legislative to the political battlefields today as the 79th congress went home expecting that it won't be back until after the November election, if ever.

The vast majority of its members, however, hoped individually to be on hand when the 80th congress is called to order in January.

Every house seat technically is at stake in November, although some of the contests already have been decided in Democratic primaries in the South. Thirty-six senate seats are to be filled, and there, too, some southern Democrats have cleared their voting hurdle.

The senate bowed out with a thumping 60 to 2 vote approving a resolution authorizing the president to deposit with the United Nations this country's agreement to abide by decisions of the world court in matters pertaining to treaty interpretations, international law, breaches of international obligations, and reparations.

Limits Jurisdiction.

The court's jurisdiction would not be accepted, however, in matters which the United States considers strictly its own domestic business. Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) of the foreign relations committee said immigration and operation of the Panama canal are in this category.

The scattering lawmakers of the senate and house left other major legislation on the White House doorstep, including a $2,636,289,000 appropriation bill carrying funds for enlisted men's furlough pay.

Also approved in the last minute rush was a measure boosting old age benefit and other payments and freezing the social security payroll tax until January, 1948, at the present level of 1 per cent on employers and employes.

HOLD SUSPECT IN AUTO MISHAP

Police Cite Man Believed to Have Left Accident Scene Early Today.

Police today were holding for investigation a Mansfield man believed to have been involved in a three-car accident and then fled in his car.

Officers reported that a car driven by Harry J. Young, of 21 Armstrong street, was struck by the man's auto at the Park avenue east subway early today. Young's car then struck another vehicle.

After the accident, police said, the defendant's car was driven from the scene with Young and the driver of the third car giving chase. They lost trace of the car near the Armory, officers said.

Later, police said, the man appeared at police headquarters and because he appeared to be "under the influence of alcohol" and could give no account of his activities he was held for investigation concerning the accident.
